

Vologases III (c. A.D. 105 - 147)

ΟΛΑΓΑΣΗΣ

Vologases first presented himself as a claimant for the Parthian throne around A.D. 105, near the end of the reign of Pacorus II, and he continued as a rival for the throne through the reign of Osroes I []. After the death of that king, Vologases was able to rule the greater part of Parthia until his death. Subsequently he had to contend with raiders from the north as well as several usurpers in Iran, including Mithradates IV [] and Unknown King III [].

His coinage was prolific, perhaps the most common of all the Parthian rulers, indicating a long rule and probably a vibrant economy.
